Appointment of the Board of Directors: Alan Packer has joined the BoD

The Shareholders' Meeting resolved to appoint the new Board of Directors which will remain in office until the date of the Shareholders' Meeting convened for the approval of the financial statements of the Company as of December 31, 2023. Alan Packer, formerly Director of Engineering for Amazon's Alexa Natural Language Understanding (NLU) team, has joined the company's board of directors. Alan's deep technical knowledge of the NLU space will be instrumental in the company's continued development of its differentiated hybrid AI approach to create NLU solutions combining knowledge-base, machine learning, and large language models (LLMs) for the enterprise.

Stefano Spaggiari, Executive Chairman of expert.ai, commented: "Alan is a brilliant tech leader, with a deep and direct experience leading AI teams that have built outstanding NLU-based services for millions of people. He will bring unique insight to our business-focused board of directors, and we look forward to learning from his perspective as we continue to grow our industry leadership and develop solutions that deliver real, tangible enterprise value."

Alan Packer has nearly 30 years of applied artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning experience in natural language technologies, speech recognition, internet-scale web services and security for both enterprise and consumer products. Prior to leading Amazon's Alexa NLU team, Alan was Director of Engineering for Facebook's Search Platform and Language Technology team where he was responsible for Search Ranking, Machine Translation, Speech Recognition and NLU technology. Previously, Alan was General Manager of the Anti-Malware team and later the Language and Intent team at Bing, building the core technology and back-end for Microsoft's personal assistant Cortana.

The Shareholders' Meeting is composed as follows:

1. Stefano Spaggiari (Executive Chairman)
2. Marco Varone (Director)
3. Walter Lloyd Mayo III (Director)
4. Sara Polatti (Director)
